Overview

The Westward Expansion of the United States in the 1800s involved travelers who faced tough situations such as illness and hunger in order to find opportunities in the West. Having an understanding of this time in American history gives students insight into our American spirit.

Objectives

The student will be able to:

1. Draw on information from multiple sources to define a problem and its solutions.
2. Describe the journey west on the Oregon Trail.

Procedures

Background Knowledge: Students have been studying the Westward Expansion period in American history.

SESSION ONE

1. Introduce the lesson with a KWL chart, asking students to describe what they already know about the time in American history known as Westward Expansion. Record the student responses on the chart.
2. Now ask them to describe what they know about the travel itself—the actual journey.
3. Create a second KWL chart and have students look at first chart and see if any of their earlier responses would fit on the new chart about the journey west. (covered wagons, taking along animals, walking long distances, bad and good weather, food, hostile environment, etc.).
(Preparation: Linking to background and Past learning; Grouping Option: Whole Class)
4. Project The United States, its Major Rivers and Continental Divide map.
<http://geoalliance.asu.edu/sites/default/files/maps/USRIVCD.pdf> Point out Oregon and Missouri (a popular place to leave from on the journey west). Have students share their ideas on what would be a good route to take and why.
(Application: Promotes engagement)
5. Project the interactive Oregon Trail map found at:

<http://www.historyglobe.com/ot/otmap2.htm>

Click on the landmarks and have students read the information about each site.

6. Project the YouTube video—The Oregon Trail (The Wild West) (7:10 min)
<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=dbjpemcYF7Y>
(Integrated Processes: Reading and Listening; Application: Linked to objectives)
7. Have students return to the second KWL chart and add any information they have now learned.
8. End class by projecting the Vocabulary Cards and explaining the definitions and images.

SESSION TWO

1. Project the Towards the West PowerPoint. Slides 1 and 2: Have students describe what they observe in and infer about the picture.
2. Slide 3: Point out the Oregon Trail as shown on The Oregon Trail map. Then have students look at the Physical Regions of the United States map and identify the regions that the trail covered. Discuss the landscape of the plains, mountains, and coastal land. (Application: Promotes engagement, Integrated Processes: Reading, Speaking, Listening)
3. Slide 4 and 5: Set the scene for why people traveled west and the identity they will assume as Bradley.
4. Slide 6: Introduce the idea that they will be making decisions throughout the journey and their goal is to gain decision making points and have money enough to support their new beginning in Oregon. Distribute the Tracking Sheet. Decide if the students will work in pairs or individually. (Grouping Option: Independent or Partners; Integrated Processes: Reading, Speaking, Listening, and Writing)
5. Slides 7-18. Go through the situations given in Decisions 1-6. Have students rate their decisions on the Tracking Sheet.
6. End the session by have students complete the Reflection questions on the Tracking Sheet.

SESSION THREE

1. Either print copies or project the National Park Service information about Scotts Bluff Traveling the Emigrant Trails
<http://npshistory.com/brochures/scbl/traveling-the-emigrant-trails.pdf> Read discuss the information as a class. Create a list of the problems the travelers faced as they journeyed on the whiteboard.
2. Distribute the Research on the Oregon Trail worksheet. Instruct students to select one of the problems they identified as a class. Note: You may want to limit how many students can do a specific problem so more problems are researched. Allow time for students to access the National Park Service brochure on emigrant trails and find additional information about their problem and its solutions. (Integrated Processes: Reading, Speaking, Listening, Writing)

Towards the West: Oregon Trail

Assessment

Social Science and ELA

Tracking Sheet and the Research on the Oregon Trail can be graded for completeness and accuracy. Mastery will be considered a score of 80% or higher.

The Vocabulary Test can be used to measure language acquisition. Mastery will be considered a score of 80% or higher.

Technology

The Research on the Oregon Trail can be graded. At least one additional source of information used to research the Oregon Trail should be provided to show that student understands intellectual property and can find information on a topic. The citation must at least include the web address for the information. Mastery will be considered 100%. (Assessment: Individual, Written)

Extensions

Have students identify a journey they would like to take. How would they travel and who would they take along with them? What hardships could they encounter? Have them map the journey.
